Profile bio and cover letter rewrite: before and after

Work sample by AUTOMAIT. Fictional brief and brand; no client. AI-assisted; checked against the brief before delivery.

Brief / what the client asked: "My freelance profile isn't getting replies. Rewrite my bio and the cover letter I send for bookkeeping jobs. Keep it honest, I don't want to sound like a robot."

Fictional freelancer; no name, no real business. The BEFORE is a typical weak draft of the kind we receive. The AFTER keeps every fact from the BEFORE and adds the ones a client needs to decide (software, client types, quote process). On a real job those come from the freelancer's answers to our intake questions; here they are invented for the fictional freelancer.

Part A · profile bio

BEFORE (120 words, as received)

> I am a highly motivated and detail-oriented professional with a passion for bookkeeping and accounting. I have experience in various accounting software and I am dedicated to providing high-quality services to my clients. I am a hard worker and a fast learner who always goes the extra mile for client satisfaction. My skills include data entry, bank reconciliation, accounts payable and receivable, payroll, and financial reporting. I believe that communication is key and I always strive to deliver results on time. I am looking forward to working with you and helping your business grow. Please feel free to contact me at any time to discuss your project. Thank you for considering my profile. I look forward to hearing from you.

What is wrong with it: every sentence could belong to any of ten thousand profiles. There is no number, no software named, no sign of who the clients are or what the work actually involves. The client reads it on a phone, sees "highly motivated", and keeps scrolling.

AFTER (119 words)

> Bookkeeper for small businesses that have fallen behind. I reconcile bank feeds, tidy up the chart of accounts, chase the receipts, and hand you a set of books your accountant will not send back. Xero and QuickBooks Online day to day; MYOB if that is what you have.

Most of my clients are trades and online shops with 1 to 10 staff who need the books kept, not a finance department. Typical jobs: a monthly reconciliation and reporting pack, a catch-up on 6 to 18 months of neglected transactions, or payroll for a small team.

I give a fixed quote after a 15-minute look at your file, and I tell you if the job is smaller than you think.

What changed and why - Opens with who it is for and what they get, in the first line, since that is all a phone shows. - Names the software and the kind of client, so the right buyer recognises themselves. - Replaces "high-quality" and "go the extra mile" with the actual deliverable (books the accountant will not send back). - Ends with how buying works (fixed quote, short look first), which is the information a client needs to act. - Everything in it is a plain statement the freelancer can back up. No "passion", no promises about growth.

Part B · cover letter for a posted job

Job as posted (fictional): "Need a bookkeeper to catch up 9 months of transactions in Xero for a small landscaping business. About 1,200 transactions. Need it done in two weeks."

BEFORE (as received)

Dear Hiring Manager,

I am writing to express my interest in the bookkeeping position you have posted. I have carefully read your requirements and I am confident that I am the perfect fit for this job. I have extensive experience in bookkeeping and I am proficient in all major accounting software. I am a highly reliable and organised individual who always delivers work on time and to the highest standard. I would be grateful for the opportunity to discuss your project further and demonstrate my skills. Please do not hesitate to contact me at your convenience. I am available to start immediately and I can assure you that you will not be disappointed with my work.

Looking forward to your positive response.

Kind regards

AFTER

Hi,

Nine months of landscaping transactions in Xero, about 1,200 lines, done in two weeks. That is a catch-up job I do regularly, and here is how I would run yours.

Days 1 to 2: connect or import the bank feeds, check the opening balances match the last reconciled month, and set up rules for the suppliers you use every week (fuel, nursery, tip fees). Days 3 to 9: reconcile month by month, flagging anything I cannot code with the receipt or invoice you have. Days 10 to 12: you answer one list of questions, not a trickle of emails. Days 13 to 14: final check, a reconciliation report per month, and a short note on anything your accountant will want to know about.

Fixed price for the 1,200 transactions as described: $[amount], paid through the platform on completion. If the file turns out to be messier than described, I tell you before I start, not at the end.

Two questions before I quote firm: are the bank feeds already connected in Xero, and is any of this period already partly reconciled?

Thanks, [name]

What changed and why - Repeats the job back in the first line, so the client knows the letter was written for them and not pasted. - Gives a day-by-day plan. A plan is the strongest proof of competence a stranger can offer without references. - States a fixed price and the payment route. Clients hire the person who made the decision easy. - Asks two scoping questions that only someone who has done the job would ask. - Drops every reassurance ("you will not be disappointed") in favour of a commitment the client can hold them to.

Notes for the client

- Prices and names are placeholders. We never invent clients, results or years of experience; if you have a number you can back up, we use it.
- Written AI-assisted and checked before delivery. The voice is deliberately plain so it reads as you, not as a template.
